CALIFORNIA PRISONERS

The publication, California Prisoners, presenting statistics describing the felons under the jurisdiction of the California Department of Corrections, has been issued since 1945. The first printed report contained data for the five-year period, 1945-1949. This issue covers 1970 and 1971.

The total population of the Department of Corrections includes in addition to felons, civilly committed narcotic addicts, California Youth Authority wards, and persons transferred from other agencies. The first chapter of this report describes the movement of all the populations into and out of the Department's institutions. The remaining chapters deal with the felon population exclusively.

PREFACE

The years 1970 and 1971 were characterized by substantial decreases in the population of correctional institutions in California and by increased numbers of persons under parole supervision in the community.

The increase in felony convictions was not reflected in increased commitments to State prisons. For three years, 1969 through 1971, the number of felons received from court remained stable compared with prior years while the number of inmates released to parole increased to an all-time high in 1971. This imbalance of intake and outgo resulted in fewer persons in California prisons. In 1971, as more felons were discharged from parole, the parole population began to stabilize after several years of expansion.

This issue of California Prisoner presents a comprehensive statistical description of the California prison and parole populations for the years 1970 and 1971. A variety of statistical measurements are displayed in tables, text, and charts. This report draws upon an improving system of statistical reporting and record keeping within the Department of Corrections.

SUMMARY

INSTITUTION POPULATION AND MOVEMENT

The California Department of Corrections institution population reached its lowest point in twenty years, 20,294, on December 31, 1971. This represented approximately one person in prison for each 1,000 persons in the State population.

FELONS NEWLY RECEIVED FROM COURT

Fewer felons were newly received from court in 1970 than in any year since 1956. The total of 4,690 felons newly received in 1970 increased to 4,788 in 1971.

Narcotics offenses with 864 men claimed the largest number of male felons newly admitted from court during 1970. Robbery was next in frequency with 853 men. This was reversed the following year when robbers led with 995 admitted, and narcotics offenders were second with 921 men.

The median age of male felons newly received from court continued to decrease. In 1971 this age median was 26.2 years, the lowest ever recorded in this State.

Of the male felons admitted during 1971, over 60 percent had already served a sentence in a jail or a juvenile institution, another 22 percent had been in prison before. Only 10.7 percent of the total men newly received in 1971 had been in a California prison previously.

One of every three male felons newly received in 1971 was a heroin addict; compared with one in four of the men received in 1970. Heroin addiction among newly received women was 32.3 percent in 1971, more than double the 1968 figure of 15.6 percent.

CHARACTERISTICS OF FELONS IN PRISON

The felon population of California prisons at the end of 1971 consisted of 16,952 men and 522 women, a substantial decrease from the population of 20,460 men and 589 women on December 31, 1970.

Approximately one-quarter of the male felons in prison in 1970 and 1971 had been paroled and later returned as parole violators. One in five of these had been returned three or more times.

Parole violators comprised 27.1 percent of women in prison at the end of 1971 and almost one-third of these violators had been returned three or more times.

FELONS RELEASED FROM PRISON

Over 95 percent of the men and women released from prison in 1970 and 1971 were released to parole supervision.

More male felons were paroled during 1971 than ever before. The number of men paroled increased from 6,021 in 1968 to 8,016 in 1970, and to 9,489 during the following year.

The median time served by men who were released to first parole during the years 1968 through 1971 was 36 months. Women who were first paroled in 1971 served a median time of 16 months before release.

The number of men discharged from prison at expiration of sentence decreased continuously from 1,063 in 1965, to 294 in 1970 and leveled off at 287 in 1971.

FELON PAROLE POPULATION AND MOVEMENT

The parole population increased by 14.6 percent in 1970, followed by another 5.9 percent increase in 1971. The parole population was 15,808 felons by the end of 1971. The number of paroles per 100,000 State population increased from 59.3 in 1968 to 78.0 in 1971.

CHARACTERISTICS OF FELONS ON PAROLE

Of the male felons under parole supervision on December 31, 1971, robbery and narcotics offense groups combined accounted for over 40 percent of male felon parolees. Forgery and check offenders comprised the largest group (27.0 percent) among women parolees at the end of 1971.

PAROLE SUSPENSION

Only 9.5 percent of the 8,752 male felons released to parole during 1971 had been suspended by the end of that year. This was the smallest percentage suspended during the year of parole in any of the ten years studied. Throughout the study period, approximately one-fourth of the women felon parolees were suspended within the same year as paroled.

FELONS DISCHARGED FROM PAROLE

During 1971, 5,810 men were discharged from parole. Over 70 percent of the men discharged during 1971 were released from their first parole. The median time served on present parole was 24 months. The median time served by the 4,107 male felons who were discharged from first parole in 1971 was 36 months in prison and 24 months on parole. Although the median time on parole decreased between 1965 and 1971, the median time spent in prison increased, and the combined medians were higher in 1971 than at any time since 1954. Women felons discharged in 1971 from first parole experienced medians of 17 months in prison and 25 months on parole.

FELONS RETURNED TO CALIFORNIA PRISON

The percentage of male felons returned to prison during the year of release declined in 1970 and in 1971 to 5.2 percent and 4.2 percent, respectively, continuing a downward trend that began in 1968.

THE WORK FURLough AND TRAINING FURLough PROGRAMS AND THE COMMUNITY CORRECTIONAL CENTERS

During 1971, over 1,500 male felons participated in work furlough programs. Over 150 women felons engaged in work furlough or training furlough programs during this same year.

Community correctional centers provided a temporary, sheltered living environment for the 826 felons and felon parolees received in the centers during 1971.

INSTITUTION POPULATION AND MOVEMENT

The population of the California Department of Corrections institutions was 20,294 persons on December 31, 1971. The institution population had decreased by 2,500 persons during 1970 and another 4,700 persons during 1971. This population count of 20,294 persons at the close of 1971 was the lowest count of persons in the institutions for the past twelve years.

The Director of Corrections is responsible for felons and other persons placed in his custody. In 1961 the Legislature placed the responsibility for the care and treatment of civilly committed narcotic addicts with the Director of Corrections. Additionally, the Department provides diagnostic services for counties who request it, receives some Youth Authority wards requiring special custody, felons from other states, Department of Mental Hygiene cases, Federal prisoners, and others requiring greater security than that available in county facilities.

Most of the institution population in the Department of Corrections consists of felons sentenced by Superior Courts. The second largest institution group is the civil narcotic addicts. Statistical data on the civil narcotic addict population are excluded from the remainder of this book, but are published in Summary Statistics, Civil Commitment Program for Narcotic Addicts, a California Department of Corrections publication.

The county diagnostic cases are the next most numerous institution group. Departmental staff study these cases at the reception-guidance centers for a limited time, preliminary to final sentencing by the court. Felons are housed principally in twelve of the thirteen major institutions administered by the Director of Corrections. Eleven of these twelve institutions are for men and one is for women. Most of the civil narcotic addicts are in the California Rehabilitation Center which has two locations, men at Corona and women at the Parson branch. The eleven institutions for male felons vary in type and custody, as well as in educational, vocational, and administrative programs. One institution functions primarily as a medical facility, while all others contain limited hospital facilities. Folsom is considered a maximum security institution and California Institution for Men a minimum security institution.

Some of the institutions for felons function as conservation centers. These centers train men for employment in road building, fire fighting, and conservation work.

The Department operates four reception-guidance centers, each in conjunction with a major institution, three are for men and one is for women. Personal case histories are prepared on each person received in the Department. These case histories include, in addition to the results of educational testing, social and psychological evaluation, and a summary of prior criminal history, a recommendation for the custody and institutional programs which will best serve the needs of each individual.

5

Four community based Department correctional centers were operating at the close of 1971. These centers provide housing, care, and guidance for small groups of men and women in work furlough programs or parolees in outpatient status, and help facilitate the resident's transition from institution to community living. Not all persons in the work furlough program live in the community centers. Some stay in the county jails at night and work in the community during the day.

The institution population results from flow into and out of the correctional system. The two principal sources of flow into the correctional institutions are: (1) persons newly admitted from court, and (2) parolees or outpatients returned. Similarly, the two main methods by which persons exit the correctional institutions are: (1) release to parole or outpatient supervision, and (2) discharge at expiration of sentence. The following pages present a detailed description of the movement of men and women felons in the California Department of Corrections jurisdiction.

FELONS NEWLY RECEIVED FROM COURT

Felon prisoners newly received from court reached a lower rate of admission per 100,000 State population during 1970 and 1971 than in any of the prior twenty-four years. During 1970, 4,426 men and 264 women were newly received from court. Both of these figures increased in 1971.

The offense groups of robbery, narcotics and burglary represented 57.3 percent of the 4,472 male felons newly received from court during 1971. In this same year, the major offense groups for the 316 women felons received were: 25.3 percent for narcotics, 18.0 percent for forgery and checks, 14.3 percent for homicide and 13.5 percent for thefts. Although more felons were received from Los Angeles County and from the Southern California area than from any other county or area in the State, San Francisco County had a higher rate of commitment for both men and women than any other area of California. The number of persons received from each county is shown in the Appendix.

The median age and the percentage under 25 years of age at date received in prison indicate that the male felons received have become a progressively younger group since 1955.

The decrease in age at admission was reflected in the age of women felons received from court each year. In 1955 the median age of women received was 31.6 years while in 1971 it was 28.1 years.

The history of prior commitments served in confinement is obtained from the Federal Bureau of Investigation reports, California Bureau of Criminal Identification reports, and from the inmate while at the reception center.

During 1971, 17 percent of male felons newly received from court had no prior criminal commitment record. Over 60 percent had served a sentence in a jail or in a juvenile institution and nearly 22 percent had served a prior prison sentence. Of the women received from court during 1971, over one-third had never served a criminal commitment but more than one-half had been in jail or in a juvenile institution.

A moderate proportion of the men and the women felons newly received from court had prior experience in California correctional institutions. Of the 4,472 male felons received during 1971, 477 men or 10.7 percent had a prior California prison record and had been discharged from prison or from parole. Also, of the 4,472 male felons, 1,307 men had been under the California Youth Authority jurisdiction at some time.

Exactly three-fourths of the male felons received from court during 1971 had lived in California for ten years or more before commitment. Nearly eight out of every ten women felons received during 1971 were residents of California for ten years or more.

A person is referred to as a narcotic addict when, in the opinion of the reception center clinician, he has used an opiate or its derivative to such a degree that his body has built up a tolerance and his central nervous system has become dependent upon the drug.

The proportion of felon addicts being received in prison continued to increase during 1970 and 1971.

The younger male felons were more often committed for the offenses of robbery, auto theft, rape, and marijuana; while a higher proportion of those convicted of such offenses as lewd act with child and forgery said checks were in the older age groups. Median age of women committed during the 1970-71 period did not differ very much by offense group.

Data on women felons newly received from court for the years 1970 and 1971 have been combined, since there are so few women received from court each year. For both men and women, offense has been associated with other characteristics in the remainder of this chapter.

CHARACTERISTICS OF FELONS IN PRISON

The composition of the prison population is described by a study of felons in the institutions on the last day of the year. Those persons who were in the reception-guidance centers on the last day of the year are not included in the summary description, as diagnostic studies for them had not been completed. Active felon parolees who have been returned to prison temporarily for treatment for narcotic addiction are also excluded.

Felons in prison differ significantly in many characteristics from felons newly received from court. This is to be expected; for example, felons in prison will be older than felons newly received from court. Less obvious is the fact that a higher percentage of felons in prison will have been committed for violent offenses as compared to felons newly received from court. This is because persons committed for violent offenses usually remain in prison longer than those committed for nonviolent offenses.

Male felons in prison on December 31, 1971 numbered 15,734 men, 18.5 percent fewer than the previous year-end population total. The largest offense groups were: robbery, 26.6 percent; narcotics, 15.5 percent; homicide, 14.2 percent; and burglary, 13.4 percent.

Of the 494 women felons in prison on December 31, 1971, almost a third (30.4 percent) were committed for a narcotic offense; with the other large offense groups represented as follows: homicide, 17.0 percent; forgery and checks, 16.0 percent; and theft, 10.9 percent.

The median age of male felons in prison at the end of 1971 was 30.5 years, with approximately a fourth (22.7 percent) under 25 years of age, which includes 2.6 percent under 21 years of age. The median age for women felons in prison on December 31, 1971 was 31.3 years.

Over half (51.1 percent) of the male felons were white, with 30.8 percent black and 16.5 percent white, Mexican descent. The ethnic composition of the women felon prison population was: 55.5 percent white, 31.6 percent black, and 7.7 percent white, Mexican descent.

For nearly half (49.0 percent) of the men, the most serious prior criminal commitment experiences were limited to jail and/or juvenile commitments. Those who had previously served a prison term accounted for 38.5 percent of the male felon prison population and those who had never experienced a prior criminal commitment, for 12.5 percent.

Of the felons in prison on December 31, 1971, 72.9 percent of the men and 75.8 percent of the women had not been placed on parole since commitment.

Of the 4,879 male felons newly received from court during 1962, only 2.5 percent had not been released from prison by December 31, 1971. The fraction remaining in the institution was largely comprised of 23.3 percent of the 245 men originally admitted for homicide, and 3.3 percent of the 852 men convicted for robbery. Many of these offenders received consecutive sentences from the courts. All of the 285 women felons newly received during 1962 had experienced parole or permanent release by December 31, 1971.

The percentage of felons newly received from court who remain in prison on December 31 of successive years is a new addition to this chapter. The statistical recordings in the State at this time do not allow for the calculation of the exact length of time any person has been in the institution. year was related to the number of that group remaining in the institution at the end of each successive year and was expressed in percentages. A quick assessment of pattern changes in the length of time persons have been in the institutions without release is therefore possible. This new table can be read in three directions. A horizontal reading gives the percentage remaining in institutions on December 31 each year after admission; vertical readings allow percentage comparisons of December 31 figures for each successive year after the year of admission, and the diagonal from the lower left to the upper right (bottom row) yields the population stratification as of December 31, 1971. The diagonal row immediately above is the status on December 31, 1970. Therefore, the differences between the percentages in each horizontal row in the two diagonals represent the changes that occurred during one calendar year.

* The few women first admitted to prison for one offense and who subsequently received a commitment for a prison offense with a statutory sentence more severe than the original offense, are counted in the offense of first admission in this column but are in the new offense groups at the December 31 counts.

FELONS RELEASED FROM PRISON

Within the California statutes, the term setting boards, the Adult Authority for male felons and the Women's Board of Terms and Parole for women, determine the length of stay of felons in prison and on parole. In 1971, 9,489 men or 96.1 percent of the 9,873 male felons released were placed under parole supervision. The 9,489 men paroled during 1971 included 6,261 men paroled for the first time under their current commitment, 1,369 men reparedoled after return without a new California commitment, 1,241 men reparedoled after return with a new California commitment, and 618 felons reparedoled after return for placement in a Narcotic Treatment-Control Unit or a short term return unit.

The term setting boards have the authority to return a felon to prison from parole status for a violation of the parole agreement. The violation may or may not involve a new felony conviction.

Women felons released from prison during 1971 numbered 538. Of these, 525 women were paroled and 13 women were discharged at expiration of sentence.

For the purpose of studying time in prison before parole, parolees have been divided into three groups: those paroled for the first time, those reparedoled after return to prison with a new California commitment, and those reparedoled after return without a new California commitment. The median time served in the institution by male felons paroled for the first time during each of the years 1968 through 1970 has been 36 months. Women felons paroled for the first time served a median of 16 months in the institution before release during 1971.

Although there have been no executions in California since April 1967, a section has been devoted to persons with this sentence. During 1970, 36 felons were received with a death sentence and during 1971 only 21 persons were received from court with a death sentence.

FELON PAROLE POPULATION AND MOVEMENT

On December 31, 1971 the felon parole population was 15,808 persons. This was the highest in the history of the State. As approximately 95 percent of all felons committed to the custody of the Director of Corrections are eventually placed on parole, this increase in parole population complements the decrease in prison population.

The parole population is the result of a continuous movement of persons into and out of the system. Persons are received in parole supervision by being released from prison or by being reinstated to parole supervision after experiencing suspension. Persons are removed from active parole supervision by discharge at expiration of sentence, by completion of term as set or reset by boards, by pardon or commutation, by death, or by suspension. Parole supervision provides guidance and assistance to parolees while adjusting to community living. During 1971, 9,390 felons were placed under parole supervision upon release from prison and another 974 were reinstated to active status. During the same year, 6,089 persons were discharged and 3,108 suspended.

The 15,808 persons on parole at the close of 1971 were comprised of 14,779 male felons and 1,029 women felons.

CHARACTERISTICS OF FELONS ON PAROLE

The largest offense groups represented in the male felon parole population on December 31, 1971 were: robbery, 22.9 percent; narcotics, 20.7 percent; and burglary, 17.6 percent. The corresponding offense groups most numerously represented by women felon parolees were: forgery and checks, 27.0 percent; narcotics, 20.2 percent; and homicide, 14.3 percent.

Most men and women on parole status at the end of 1971 were experiencing the first parole of their present commitment. This was true of 66.1 percent of the male felon parolees and 62.9 percent of women felon parolees.

Over half of the December 31, 1971 male felon parole population (57.9 percent) had been on parole for less than one year, with 25.9 percent having been on parole for between one and two years. The corresponding figures for women were 40.9 percent and 27.8 percent. Close to 90 percent of the December 31, 1971 parole population was being supervised in California.

PAROLE SUSPENSION

The majority of felon parolees have been suspended from active parole status by the end of the second year following the year of release. For example, of the 5,553 male felons paroled during 1968, 51.1 percent were suspended before December 31, 1970. However, the data indicate that the rate of suspension for those released during 1969 and since may be lower. Only 3.5 percent of the male felons released to parole during 1971 were suspended before the end of that year. This was the lowest percentage of persons suspended during the year of parole for any year during the past 10 years.

A parolee may be suspended from active parole for either an infraction of the special conditions of parole or for a criminal act. A suspended parolee may be either returned to an institution as a parole violator or reinstated to active parole. The Adult Authority and the Women's Board of Terms and Parole determine, respectively, when men and women are to be suspended or reinstated.

In cases where it is deemed appropriate, suspended parolees are placed in narcotic treatment-control units or in special short term return units. These units involve special intensive treatment for these selected parolees. Such parolees are usually returned to active parole status within six months or less.

REINSTATEMENT

Male felon parolees were reinstated in 1971 at the rate of 22 per 100 suspensions, based upon the average number of cases suspended during the year of reinstatement and the prior year. The corresponding rate for women was 46. Since 1965 this rate for male felons has ranged from 15 to 23 per 100 average suspensions. For the women it has ranged from 23 to 46. The same term setting board that suspended the parolee may order reinstatement to active parole.

A parolee whose whereabouts are unknown may be suspended, but when located is likely to be reinstated if it is determined that he was law-abiding while at large. Also, a parolee who may have been convicted of an offense and served a sentence in a jail or a prison other than California can be reinstated after suspension, if in the opinion of the board no useful purpose would be served by his return to a California prison.

Suspended male felons who are subsequently reinstated usually spend less than six months in suspended status. Since 1958 the median time between first suspension and first reinstatement for men has varied between three and five months. The 666 men reinstated during 1971 after a first suspension had been in the suspension category for a median of five months.

FELONS DISCHARGED FROM PAROLE

Penal Code Statute 2943 enacted in 1965 requires the parole boards to discharge parolees after two years if the parolee meets certain standards of rehabilitation. In addition to Penal Code 2943, the Adult Authority adopted a resolution in 1971 which applied to male felons only. This resolution permitted consideration of discharge after one year of continuous parole. Some effect of the resolution is seen in the increased number of male felons discharged from parole during 1971 as compared with 1970, 5,810 and 3,040 men, respectively.

Male felons discharged from parole during 1971 served a median of 24 months in that status, regardless of whether they were being discharged from a first parole or from a re-parole following return to prison. The women felons were on first parole a median of 25 months before discharge in 1971. This was the lowest median for any year since 1950.

An approximation of total time served by persons discharged from first parole is obtained by adding the medians of time in the institution and time on parole. Although the total of these two medians (60 months) was higher for male felons discharged from parole in 1971, than the past few years, it had been at this level in 1954. Men discharged in 1954 had spent half of their time in prison and half on parole, while those discharged in 1971 had been 36 months in the institution and 24 months on parole, all time figures being expressed as medians.

Women felons discharged from first parole in 1971 served a median of 17 months in the institution and 25 months on parole.

The medians of time in the institution and on parole differ considerably when studied by offense group.

FELONS RETURNED TO CALIFORNIA PRISON

Slightly less than half of the felons released from prison are returned to a California prison by the end of the fifth year. Of the 6,476 male felons released either by parole or discharge during 1963, 49.9 percent had been returned to prison by December 31, 1968. Of the 562 women released in 1963, 50.9 percent had been returned by the end of 1968. The trend has been toward a decrease in the percentage of persons returned. By December 31, 1971, only 43.5 percent of the men and 47.6 percent of the women released in 1966 by parole or by discharge from prison had been returned.

The cumulative percentages of felons returned to a California prison within specified time periods are studied in six steps: (1) felons returned after release by parole or by discharge from prison including felons who had been discharged from parole, (2) felons returned after discharge from prison, (3) felons returned after parole, either during parole or after discharge from parole, (4) felons returned from parole without a new California felony commitment, (5) felons returned from parole with a new California felony commitment, (6) felons returned with a new California felony commitment after discharge from parole.

Most of the male felons who are returned from parole are returned without a new California felony commitment. Whereas, 45.9 percent of the men returned, after release to parole during 1966, were returned by December 31, 1971, fully 30.0 percent of those so released were returned from parole without a new California felony commitment.

The cumulative percentages of women felons returned to prison after release, either by parole or discharge have typically been slightly higher than the corresponding percentages for men. Of the 537 women felons released during 1971, 7.8 percent were returned to prison by December 31, 1971. During the same period 4.2 percent of the 9,776 men released were returned before the end of the year.

The five male felon offense groups selected for individual study include: robbery, assault, burglary, forgery and checks, and opiate derivative, marijuanna and dangerous drug offenses. In these offense groups the number of male felons released in 1971 range from 642 men convicted of assault to 2,338 men for robbery, but the percentages of men returned during the year of release in each offense group only ranged from 3.4 percent of the assault group to 4.9 percent of the burglary offenders.

THE WORK FURLough AND TRAINING FURLough PROGRAMS AND THE COMMUNITY CORRECTIONAL CENTERS

The Department of Corrections recognizes, with its community programs, a responsibility both to the community and to the inmate. These programs are valuable in the successful reintegration of persons into free society.

WORK FURLough AND TRAINING FURLough PROGRAMS

Selected inmates are allowed to participate in work or training furlough programs in an effort to facilitate the difficult transition from institution to community living. These inmates, who are soon to be released from prison, are allowed to begin their employment and/or training in the community. They are required to spend the night in: (1) the institution, (2) a county jail or (3) a community correctional center. They are serving institution time while participating in this program.

Male felons received in work furlough programs during 1971 numbered 1,561 men. Of the 1,506 men released from the programs during the year, 954 were paroled or discharged. On December 31, 1971, a population of 292 men were in the programs. This represented a 23.2 percent increase over the prior year-end figure. Women participating in the work furlough programs on December 31, 1971 numbered 30, exactly 25 percent more than on January 1, 1971.

COMMUNITY CORRECTIONAL CENTERS

The Department's three community correctional centers provide housing and supervision in the urban community for selected inmates, parolees, and civil narcotic addicts. The structured environment of the centers provides a sheltered residence for persons in need of support in the free community. Staff provide 24-hour supervision and a variety of social services.

The three community correctional centers housing felons during 1970 and 1971 were: Rupert Crittenden Center in Oakland, Central City Center in Los Angeles, and Vinewood Center in Hollywood. (Vinewood served mostly women civil narcotic addicts.)

Only felons are addressed in this chapter. Information and statistics on civil narcotic addicts in community correctional centers can be found in the statistical report: Summary Statistics, Civil Commitment Program for Narcotic Addicts, by the Administrative Information and Statistics Section, Research Division.

Of the 58 male felons housed in Rupert Crittenden Community Correctional Center on December 31, 1971, 22 were parolees, with the remaining 36 participating in work furlough programs. Central City Community Correctional Center housed 38 men of which 3 were parolees and 35 work furlough participants.

Vinewood Community Correctional Center housed 9 women felons at the end of 1971, 4 parolees and 5 women in the work furlough programs. Central City was home for 17 women, 2 parolees and 15 women in the work furlough programs.
